Employment history

Permanent, Fulltime Position

- Lecturer in Law (United Kingdom Assistant Professor of Law), Director of Master of Research in Sustainable Futures, and Pathway Lead for Sustainable Futures in the South West Doctoral Training Partnership in the United Kingdom, University of Bristol Law School, Faculty of Social Sciences and Law, University of Bristol, United Kingdom, 2022-date
 - I research the legal aspects of sustainability and the low-carbon transition. I lead two key research projects: “Re-Imagining Agenda 2063” and “Net-Zero Law.” For the “Re-Imagining Agenda 2063” project, which I initially designed and have led at the University of British Columbia (UBC) and Law and Society Association before joining the University of Bristol, I have recruited a growing number of academic, policy, industry, and community researchers (currently over 50) from universities, think tanks, intergovernmental organizations, industries and law firms working on African issues to rethink the idea of “sustainable development” underlying the African Union’s policy blueprint for the continent’s development by 2063, called “Agenda 2063,” within the constraints set by climate change, net-zero targets, biodiversity loss, COVID-19, population growth and other global challenges. I have organized or co-organized three conferences: a 2021 conference funded and hosted by the Peter A. Allard School of Law and the Liu Institute Network for Africa at UBC; a July 2022 conference funded and hosted by the Law and Society Association at its Lisbon global meeting; and another recent conference in September 2022, sponsored by the Liu Institute Network for Africa. I led the teams that organized these conferences, including securing the funding, managing competitive selection processes, and designing the conference materials. I am collaborating with Prof. Rashid Sumaila (University Killam Professor, Canada Research Chair and Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada) at UBC and Dr. Godwin Dzah (Assistant Professor) at the University of Alberta to collect, subject to peer review and publish the strongest papers presented at these conferences by the end of 2023. Also, with funding from a research grant from the University of Bristol, I am currently designing the “Net-Zero Law” project to bring academic researchers together to create a theoretical framework for thinking about the role of law in addressing the implications of the net-zero agenda for the communities that will be most impacted by its policies, carry out an empirical investigation of nationally determined contributions, net-zero pledges and other commitments containing net-zero plans and policies to identify the challenges arising and/or that will arise, and generate ideas for practical solutions before most of those challenges manifest. I hope to start implementing this project by 2024.
 - I teach environmental law in the Bachelor of Laws and Master of Laws programmes and the contemporary debates in sustainability seminar in the Master of Research in Sustainable Futures programme. I supervise and examine undergraduate and postgraduate student dissertations and other research projects across these programmes.

- I serve as the director of the Master of Research in Sustainable Futures, Pathway Lead for Sustainable Futures under the South West Doctoral Training Partnership, and coordinator of the contemporary debates in sustainability unit and coordinate the environmental law units for the Master of Laws and Bachelor of Laws degrees. As the director of the Master of Research in Sustainable Futures, I am responsible for programme delivery, including training students, coordinating other lecturers teaching in the programme, finding and appointing supervisors, and updating programme documents. My role as the Pathway Lead in the South West Doctoral Training Partnership has mainly involved representing the University of Bristol in decision-making processes, reviewing Ph.D. and scholarship applications, and collaborating with colleagues across other universities to promote the overall objectives of the programme. For the environmental law units, I oversee the delivery of the lectures, coordinate other lecturers, and create guidance documents.

Part-time Research Positions

- Affiliated Research Scholar, Canada Climate Law Initiative, Centre for Business Law, Peter A. Allard School of Law, UBC, Canada, 2020-date
 - Reporting to Prof. Janis Sarra, the Principal Co-Investigator of the Canada Climate Law Initiative, I have carried out research, written reports, and drafted memoranda on Canada's climate governance. I have carried out independent and collaborative research. For instance, I researched the governance aspects of fossil fuel subsidies in Canada and authored a report titled "Fossil Fuel Subsidies in Canada: Governance Implication in the Net-Zero Transition." Also, my research has informed aspects of the submissions of Canada Climate Law Initiative to Canada's federal and provincial governments. For instance, I researched and wrote memoranda informing portions of Canada Climate Law Initiative's submissions to the Government of Canada and provincial governments of British Columbia and Saskatchewan on how to address climate change and promote climate reporting through various ministerial and crown corporation portfolios. Also, I have carried out research to support the Canadian Climate Governance Expert Programme and other projects of the Canada Climate Law Initiative. For instance, I have researched and written a memorandum informing our climate experts in Alberta about what corporations in Alberta are doing to address climate change and led the team that provided research support to Canada Climate Law Initiative and British High Commission representatives in their selection of Canada Climate Champions leading to COP 26 in 2021.
- Research Consultant, Commonwealth Climate and Law Initiative, Oxford Sustainable Finance Programme, Smith School of Enterprise and the Environment, University of Oxford, United Kingdom, 2020-2020
 - Working with Ms. Ellie Mulholland and other scholars and practitioners at the Commonwealth Climate and Law Initiative, I carried out research on biodiversity risks facing corporations and financial institutions. For instance, I collaborated with Ms. Ellie Mulholland and Ms. Sarah Barker as co-authors of a report on "The Emergence of Foreseeable Biodiversity-related Liability Risks for Financial Institutions: A Gathering Storm?". While working on this project, I met with my co-authors weekly and with other stakeholders, including Foundation for the International for the Environmental, Vivid Economics and Accounting for Sustainability, at various points.

- John Ballem QC LLD Postgraduate Fellow in Energy Law, Faculty of Law, University of Calgary, Canada, 2016-2017
 - The fellowship gave me the opportunity to revise my master’s thesis at the University of Calgary looking at how natural resource funds are regulated, using Alberta, Alaska and Norway as comparative case studies. After revising the thesis, I published a portion of it in the Global Journal of Comparative Law. Also, towards the end of the fellowship, I investigated the laws governing the non-renewable extractive sectors of Africa at the regional, sub-regional and national [the 54 African Union countries] levels. I later published the results as a conference paper of the African Bar Association titled “Africa’s Environmental and Sustainable Development Law for Agenda 2063,” and eventually as a chapter in an International Bar Association book titled “Environmental Law in Africa’s Non-renewable Extractive Sectors.”

- Research Assistant for the Stikeman Elliot LLP Research Fellowship in Corporate Law, Dr. Fenner Stewart, Associate Professor, Faculty of Law, University of Calgary, Canada, 2016-2016
 - I assisted Dr. Fenner Stewart with three projects titled “From Security Policies to Practice: Reducing the Non-Technical Costs of Managing Upstream Assets in Emerging Markets,” “How Regulators Think About Hydraulic Fracturing and Induced Seismicity” and “Transnational Law and Risk Governance in the Extractive Sector.” I attended research meetings, designed a research plan, prepared parts of an ethics application, carried out literature review and wrote bi-weekly research reports. Dr. Stewart has produced outputs acknowledging my research assistance, including two refereed articles: “Holistic Security Risk Management Strategies for E&Ps: Optimizing Performance by Reducing Surface Risk” (2018) 11 Journal of World Energy Law & Business 48; and “Regulating Energy Innovation: US Responses to Hydraulic Fracturing, Wastewater Injection and Induced Seismicity” (2016) 35 Journal of Energy & Natural Resources Law 109.

- Research Assistant for “Oil and Gas Extraction Risks in the Canadian Oil and Gas Sector,” Dr. Andreas Klinke, Professor and Director, Environmental Policy Institute, Social Science Division, Grenfell Campus, Memorial University, Canada, 2014-2015
 - I assisted Dr. Andreas Klinke with a project titled “Oil and Gas Extraction Risks in the Canadian Energy Sectors: Empirical Analysis of the Elements of the Risk Governance Model and its Deliberation.” I researched both practical and strategic risk analysis, and then looked for the governance documents that could enhance risk analysis. I compiled and systematically arranged the research documents I collected, and then carried out a literature review. I wrote a final dossier outlining the documents and my findings.

- Data Collection Assistant for “Perception of Cruise Ship Passengers at the Corner Brook Museum,” Dr. Roselyn Okech, Professor and Chair, Tourism Programme, Grenfell Campus, Memorial University, Canada, 2014-2014
 - I assisted Dr. Roselyn Okech in a research project on the “Perception of Cruise Ship Passengers at the Corner Brook Museum.” I interviewed and administered questionnaires to numerous passengers from various parts of the world who came with cruise ships to the Corner

Brook Museum. I also started the literature review but did not finish it because my appointment ended.

Part-time Teaching Positions

- Expert Instructor for Climate Law, Policy and Justice, Climate Teaching Connector, UBC, 2021-date
 - I deliver guest lectures across academic programmes at UBC, contributing to the efforts of the UBC Sustainability Initiative and the UBC Climate Hub (co-organizers of the programme) to integrate climate change education across academic curricular in the university. I have received several invitations: Dr. Kerry Greer invited me to talk about climate change through the lens of power, using the Niger Delta as a case study, in her Inequality and Social Change (SOCI 102) course within the UBC Faculty of Arts; Dr. Kimberly Richards invited me to talk about how my background practicing law in the Niger Delta and South-West Nigeria has informed my research journey and current projects, especially in energy and climate justice, in two of her classes on “Oil Cultures” in the Writing and Research in the Disciplines course (WRDS 150); and Dr. David Gossen has invited me to talk about the connection between colonialism, oil, the Biafra war, military rule and the Niger Delta crisis, and global climate justice in his War and society course (HIST 425). Visiting these courses have given me an opportunity to interact with several students outside my field and area of research.

- Mentor, Research Experience Programme, UBC, 2021-date
 - I supervise four students conducting research projects on climate and energy policy: Emil Thomas, Noah Jantz, Isabella White and Oceania Chee. I have held weekly meetings with them, taught them how the research process works and some basic elements of research design, and helped them to choose research topics. Emil is working on the role of corporations from developed countries in climate finance in developing countries. Noah is looking at the regulatory and incentive frameworks for small modular reactors in Canada. Isabella is working on the implications of COP 26 for corporations in Canada. Oceania is still thinking about her topic based on our discussion.

- Postgraduate Teaching Assistant for the Master of Science in Sustainable Energy Development Programme, Prof. Allan Ingelson, Professor, Faculty of Law and Haskayne School of Business, and Director, Canadian Institute of Resources Law, University of Calgary, Canada, 2017-2017
 - I assisted Prof. Allan Ingelson in the delivery of a master’s course titled “Environmental Law in the Energy Sector.” I prepared examination questions, marked papers and provided feedback to students. I also advised Prof. Ingelson on the Alberta Heritage Trust Fund, which I had worked on in my LLM thesis at the University of Calgary, for a presentation he had.

- Lecturer (Per Course Instructor for Environmental Law), Sustainable Resource Management and Environmental Studies Programmes, Social Science Division, Grenfell Campus, Memorial University, Canada, 2015-2015
 - I designed, taught, and evaluated a course called “Environmental Law.” The course was open to multiple departments at Grenfell Campus, but most of my students were undergraduates from Environmental Studies and Sustainable Resource Management. As the lead instructor, I developed the course to focus on Canadian national and international aspects of environmental law. The course covered the applicable history, theories, legal regimes, principles, and issues.

The delivery was interdisciplinary (starting with the technical, economic, cultural, etc, foundation before moving into the law), bearing in mind that my students were from Sustainable Resource Management and Environmental Studies programmes. I evaluated the course based on class participation, group research projects, take-home assignments, an oral quiz and a final written examination.

Policy Positions

- Coordinating Co-Chair, Liu Institute Network for Africa, School of Public Policy and Global Affairs, UBC, 2017-2022
 - As a Liu Scholar, I cofounded the Liu Institute Network for Africa at UBC to be a platform for brainstorming and shaping global issues affecting Africa and African issues affecting the world. Most importantly, I have led and shaped it to focus more on sustainability activities and initiatives. I coordinate the steering committee and oversee our interaction with members and partners, using this influence to promote sustainability projects. Also, I have initiated and coordinated several projects. They including the Re-Imagining Agenda 2063 Project, launch of “One Who Dreams is Called a Prophet,” the COVID 19 and Africa Webinar Series, and the Canadian African Congress: I designed the “Re-Imagining Agenda 2063 Project” as a collaborative project hosted and funded by Liu Institute for Global Issues and Peter A. Allard School of Law at UBC and Law and Society Association in the US to re-think Africa’s development in this age of several transformations resulting from global challenges such as climate change and COVID-19; I had oversight over our planning for the “One Who Dreams is Called a Prophet,” where we hosted Professor Ngũgĩ wa Thiong’o, one of Africa’s leading literary icons, to address development struggles in Africa; I coordinated our steering committee for the team that organized the COVID 19 and Africa Webinar Series and led the team that put together one of the webinars in the series titled “COVID-19 and African Economies”; and I designed the Canadian African Progress project as a partnership with a Canadian Member of the Parliament as a platform to bring together African and African-diaspora organizations in Canada, but the COVID-19 pandemic impacted our implementation.
- Project Director, Community Sustainability Global (hosted by Holistic Sustainable Development Network International and Human Dignity Foundation), 2018-2020
 - As a member of the boards of directors of Holistic Sustainability Development Network International in Canada and Human Dignity Foundation in Nigeria, I brought both organizations together to partner on the Community Sustainability Global project. I designed the project to facilitate collaboration between social enterprises, experts, governments and other stakeholders on sustainability teaching and skill training. With some money from my Vanier Scholarship and funding from Human Dignity Foundation, in-kind support from Holistic Sustainable Development Network International and several volunteers, we started implementing the project in 2019. We partnered with the Oyo State Government in implementing the project in Nigeria, and I recruited a local startup, Adireseyi Enterprises (Nigerian registration number: 2821379), to train community members how to make tie-dye (redesigning and reusing fabrics) to cut back on unsustainable practices (e.g. logging and overfishing) across state secondary schools in Ibadan. I also recruited volunteers and a social enterprise, Munchies Foodshare, to teach youth about food sustainability in Vancouver, for instance at the Anglican Canadian Asian Ministry Youth Camp.
- Legal Research Associate, Social Impact Firm (a corporate social responsibility firm with clients across North America), Canada, 2017-2018

- Supervised by the principal lawyer, Ms. Catherine Duhamel, as a part-time associate, I drafted corporate social responsibility documents for clients in North America, most notably the American Chamber of Commerce. I also had regular meetings with the legal team of the firm and brainstormed ideas about how to deal with specific files. I provided feedback to other members of the team on their files.
- Policy Intern, Forestry and Agrifoods Agency, Government of Newfoundland and Labrador, Canada, 2015-2015
 - Supervised by Mr. Dave Jennings, a Director with the Government of Newfoundland and Labrador, I completed a project on the impact of the Trans-Pacific Partnership on Canada's Agricultural Supply Management, focusing specifically on the implications for farmers in the province's dairy sector. I wrote a position paper titled "Supply Management in Newfoundland and Labrador: Risk Management for Social Justice?", which was submitted to the Government of Newfoundland and Labrador.

Professional Positions

- Solicitor and Advocate of the Supreme Court of Nigeria and Partner, Lex Luminaire Solicitors (a commercial law firm), Nigeria, 2011-2014
 - I cofounded this law firm. My partner, Dapo Egunwale, and I managed commercial, property, and environmental practice, registered organizations, represented clients at board and general meetings, and performed other responsibilities. Two of our notable clients were Biofuel Development Farmers' Association, a South-West Nigerian group of farmers dealing in biofuel feedstock, and Green Energy Plant, a start-up dealing in biodigesters and waste recycling. We sought government renewable energy incentives for these clients, and our efforts included having meetings with government corporations and politicians. After I left for Canada, my partner built on our work and resources to start another law firm called Grandeur Solicitors.
- Solicitor and Advocate of the Supreme Court of Nigeria and Counsel, Godwin Efosa (G.E.) Ezomo & Company, Nigeria, 2010-2011
 - Supervised by Godwin Ezomo, the principal lawyer, I handled trial and appeal cases. I prepared case briefs and appeared at the Magistrate Court, Customary Court, High Court and Court of Appeal. Also, I prepared other legal documents such as contracts, conveyance instruments, power of attorney and deeds. Additionally, I participated in and presented at regular boardroom seminars and wrote legal reviews of documents.
- Judicial Intern (supervised by Justice Chidi Nwaoma Uwa), Court of Appeal of Nigeria, Ibadan Judicial Division, Nigeria, 2010-2010
 - The internship was part of my training at the Nigerian Law School. Supervised by Justice Chidi Nwaoma Uwa, I observed court proceedings, analyzed cases, interacted with judges, and wrote daily reflections and a report on my experience. I defended my internship orally at the Nigerian Law School, Abuja campus.
